HOW LONDON LOOKS AFTER AN ABSENCE OF EIGHT YEARS

The Roman Catholic Cathedral of Westminster and the Historic Abbey

(By a Glendalian.)

PART I.

A few weeks ago the writer returned from a brief visit to England, a short account of which may interest some of the News readers. Ocean passages are too commonplace, nowadays, to talk about, but, en passant, it may be remarked that there is a wide difference in the service and accommodations of different lines. Also, that second class on some steamers is as agreeable and comfortable as any one not a snob or hypochrondiac could desire; and even a particular person can find congenial society, as a rule, in that class, whilst those who prefer a minimum of convention and ceremony, should certainly travel second if they would be as much at home as in an ordinary hotel. The landing at Southampton was in rain; it rained in London, where I stayed a few days; it was overcast and chilly in Sussex; rained again much of the time spent in Herts and Cambridgeshire, and during most of my visits in Yorkshire, inland and on the coast. In fact such a wet May and June had not been known for years. Yet, in spite of it all, the English spring, beyond the confines of the big cities, is so ravishingly beautiful with its intensely green rich meadows, its bowerlike hedgerows, its enchanting cottage gardens abloom with primroses, cowslips, lilacs, laburnums, its grand old woods and picturesque villages that one hardly misses the sunshine; indeed, in the pellucid air and under the brilliance of a sunshiny day England is simply irresistible for the paradise-hunter, wherever he may be in that snug little island he wants to settle down for life, be it in a thatched cottage covered with roses and eglantine, or in turreted old hall rich without and within with storied loveliness, according to his means and ambition. However, I had to divide my weeks into a number of visits to friends in various parts of England, so had no time to build day dreams or castles.

In London, after eight years' absence, I found changes sufficiently marked to repel the insinuation that effeteness and corruption have set their mark upon the city. Quite to the contrary, I found street reconstruction and improvements in the western portion accomplished that give evidence of splendid enterprise and administration on the part of the municipal authorities. I found municipal tramways at last running along the embankment and crossing the Thames by one of the bridges heretofore held sacred against such public transportation. And such tram cars, too, as would delight the heart of a New Yorker wearied with the daily scramble for a few inches of hanging-on space in one of his city's wretchedly inadequate cars. The London cars are double-deckers, the upper story duplicating the lower in all respects, covered in, with garden seats, and easy stairways perfectly adapted for ladies and for rapid ingress and egress. No standing is allowed and decent conditions prevail at all times. In addition, there are several motor buses plying on various routes which, although still opposed by the conservatives, have proved beyond cavil their efficiency and service to the city. A severe test is given each vehicle before being placed on the streets, and the modern motorbus driver is gaining a reputation as solid as that of his historic predecessor of the horsebus, which still runs on many of the old routes, and will do so as long as lovers of antiquities remain (both in America and England) to patronize it. The grimy "Underground" of sulphurous memory is replaced by the "Tuppeny Tube" (2-pence being the uniform fare), with its clean, swift, electric cars that serve nearly every part of London and are branching out into the suburbs.

Among the larger public buildings finished of late years is the Roman Catholic Cathedral of Westminster, situated close to Victoria Station (which latter place is undergoing complete reconstruction on a generous scale). The cathedral is a wide departure from the usual style of ecclesiastical architecture in England, being of the Byzantine order, and built of brick throughout, to be faced inside with marble and mosaic, when funds will allow. It is now open for worship, but, with the exception of a few of the side chapels, presents a rather bare and unattractive series of brick surfaces, suggestive to the layman of a glorified barn. Its great area and height, however, lend dignity, and, unquestionably, when the interior decorations are added, the effect will be imposing if not magnificent. Some idea of its possibilities can now be gleaned by an inspection of the nearly completed side chapel north of the chancel, which is being furnished and decorated at the expense of the Spanish king, the cost being computed to be over $100,000. Westminster Abbey was, of course, visited and a stroll through its venerable arcades and chapels enjoyed with a zest whetted by long absence. It is interesting to note the numerous parties of young folk, usually in charge of a cicerone, who appear to take pleasure in deciphering the inscriptions on the worn stones erected to personages more real now, perhaps, to these boys and girls, than they will be hereafter. A bright English youth who enters for the first time this shrine of England's past glories, can hardly view without a thrill the tattered battle flags that hang from the walls, mutely eloquent of the heroism and devotion they witnessed on many a bloody field; nor can he read with indifference, the classic epitaphs on the delicate or quaintly carved tombs that cover floor and walls with the records of statesmen, scholars, kings, warriors and priests whose names and deeds are forever woven in the woof of Britain's history. Such impressions will last the boy's lifetime and may become an inspiration to the deedful life. Fortunately, the same experience is within the reach of Americans who come of British stock, for in the Abbey, at least, they stand on common ground with Englishmen, in common veneration of a past that has made the two nations what they are today. In St. Paul's Cathedral, although to a large extent a Valhalla for departed geniuses, heroes and worthies, there is a similar atmosphere, with however, more of the modern spirit intermingled in the subtle influence pervading this majestic fame. Since my last visit the rich mosaic designs of the chancel roof and walls have been completed with brilliant results; the interior dome decoration has been carried out largely as designed, the Wellington memorial transported from a side chapel to an advantageous site in the nave near to Gordon's tomb and to the new altar-tomb of the late President Leighton of Royal Academy fame, his marble effigy being an example of chaste and sympathetic sculpture that well serves to perpetuate the memory of this distinguished artist. From the stone gallery outside the dome, perhaps one of the finest views of London [illegible] is obtainable, the panorama changing with every few paces. In the near distance one of the most prominent blocks is the new Newgate Prison and Police Courts that occupy the ancient site.

CITY TRUSTEES.

All present except Mr. Anderson. Trustee Jennings moved that the action of the board in tabling the resolutions in reference to the poolroom license, be rescinded and the same be placed on file. The motion being seconded and a vote taken, Messrs. Jennings and Watson voted aye and Messrs. Campbell and Parcher nay, motion consequently lost.

The following awards were referred to the finance committee:

Glendale Light and Power Co., for lights in July, $51.65; Geo. Byram, locating hydrants, $6.25; L. F. Hadrich, rent, $20.00; G. B. Woodberry, salary, $30.00; Riggs & Sherer, publishing, $12.80; E. R. Tarling, license collections, $10.60.

Demands previously referred to finance committee, amounting to $150.52, were reported favorably and warrants ordered drawn. A protest was received from property owners on Fifth street, against making any change in the curb and sidewalk now existing on that street.

(This refers to sidewalk and curbing laid before the grade was established.)

The matter was referred to the city engineer in conjunction with committee of the whole who will meet with parties interested and endeavor to adjust the matter equitably, next Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

A report was received from the committee appointed by the board of trade recommending a system of numbering streets. Referred to committee of the whole who meet next Monday evening to take up this matter and also the question of changing names of the lettered streets.

A petition was received from property owners interested requesting that the Salt Lake Railway company be allowed the privilege of leaving cars on their tracks on the alley south of First street for a period of twenty-four hours, instead of two hours, as at present. Referred to committee of the whole.

A petition was received asking that the necessary steps be taken to improve First street from Glendale avenue to Verdugo road. Referred to city engineer to report on frontage and cost of work. Application to do street work by private contract was received from E. D. Reynolds for improvement of Chestnut street. Permit granted.

Mr. Reynolds was also granted permit to include lot 5, block 13, in his work under permit No. 10, on payment of fees.

Three protests were received from property owners along Fourth street, asking that the acceptance of this street work be cancelled and the assessment corrected. The principal claim of the protestants was to the effect that property owners should not be assessed for the improvement of that portion of the street, which it was originally contemplated should be improved by the Pacific Electric Railway company. Some of the petitioners were also of the opinion that in some minor details, the work had not been done in accord[illegible]

The matter was referred to the city attorney, who gave it as his opinion that the protests had not been filed within the 30-day limit, as required by law; the time having expired at 11 a. m., this date.

Report of City Recorder Charles E. Stanley was received and filed.

On motion an ordinance establishing the grade of a portion of Second street from the easterly line of A street to the westerly line of Verdugo Road, was taken up for third reading and passed. The city attorney was instructed to prepare a resolution prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquors within the limits of the corporation. City attorney was also instructed to draw up an ordinance to prohibit expectorating on the sidewalks and buildings. City attorney was also instructed to prepare an ordinance excluding from fire district number one, lots 2, 4, 6 and 8, in block 21, and lots 20, 21 and 22, in block 10.

The city engineer was instructed to recommend grades on all streets between Brand boulevard and A street on which grades are not yet established. The city attorney was instructed to draw up an ordinance providing for the proper muffing of gasoline engines.

GLENDALE, CAL., AUGUST 31, 1907

W. J. Bryan is reported as saying that he is not responsible for Roosevelt's ideas. Candidly, W. J., we never suspected you were!

It is said by a special correspondent that the silk bathing suits worn by the smart set at Newport are a "revelation." Seems to us that bathing suits usually are.

A "Rake-off"

Mr. J. O. Johnson has a communication in last week's Independent, in which he says that the present city treasurer gets "one per cent of all money that passes through his hands." This statement happens to be true. Last year the sum total reached the munificent figure of $65.

Then Mr. Johnson continues to the effect that as tax collector the treasurer receives "five per cent of all collected." This happens to be not true. The sum total of collections last year was about $6500. The stipend received by the collector was $100 only. If $100 is five per cent of $6500, Mr. Johnson is correct: otherwise his desire to score a point against the official aforesaid has led him into the devious paths of untruthfulness.

The Telegraphers' Strike

This contest drags on its weary length at the expense of all the parties concerned—the stockholders of the commercial companies, the operators and the public. It is a strike unmarked by violence, and that portion of the public who patronize the telegraph but little do not realize the seriousness of the situation.

It is the policy of telegraphic officials to deceive the public into the belief that the strike is a failure, and that telegrams are being handled as usual; and yet the "subject to delay" notices still remain conspicuously posted.

If telegrams are being handled promptly it is owing to the fact that the volume of business is very seriously diminished. People do not like to pay telegraphic tolls and have their messages forwarded by mail, as must frequently be the result when the companies are short of operators.

That there are a considerable number of operators at work is true, but the time is drawing near when the strain of double service will begin to tell upon them and their hours of duty will have to be shortened. In addition to this prospect is the fact that the extra men who have gone into the service temporarily, working extra, nights and Sundays, in addition to their regular employment elsewhere, cannot long be depended upon.

The most serious fact in connection with the strike as affecting future telegraphic service is, that many of the operators have secured employment in other lines of usefulness and will not return to the key. This will mean that after the strike is ended the service will be greatly crippled, for there is a scarcity of good telegraphers.

Altogether we believe that if the men hold out as well as they give promise of doing, the companies will have to accede to their demands ultimately, for they are at present paying double wages to their employees and the receipts have certainly been greatly diminished; which is a condition of affairs that the stockholders will not long tolerate.

Two Methods—One Aim

Rev. G. R. Graff's remarks at the meeting of the Board of Trustees a week ago last Wednesday night, when the committee of which he is chairman presented to the council the petition asking them to rescind their action in regard to the pool room, was made in the proper spirit and produced a good impression. He stated the desire of the petitioners clearly, made his argument fairly, and left the impression that altho he and the petitioners were of an opinion contrary to that entertained by the trustees and some other citizens, it did not follow that there was any lack of honesty on either side.

If we can arrive at the point where matters of common interest may be discussed calmly and with a readiness to acknowledge that all the honesty and common sense is not entirely monopolized by either side, then discussion will be of value. In regard to these questions, we cannot all get on to the same viewpoint. A portion of our people have always lived in an atmosphere of repression and it naturally enough seems to them that their children should be surrounded by the same atmosphere. We believe that this class of our citizens are not well informed as to the results of their practice of this theory. We think it possible that parents who exercise extreme repressive measures over their children, who are determined to keep away from them all the temptations of the world, do not in reality get the results which they imagine are secured. It very commonly happens that the children of such parents become far more familiar with the shady paths of life than the parents fondly suppose.

Now, there is another class of parents who are equally devoted to their children, who believe that the essential thing is not to keep them in ignorance of the common temptations of life, but to endeavor to so guide them in their years of immaturity that when they go out upon the highway of life they shall be so panoplied with the armor of pure thought and true wisdom, that they keep in the right path, not through ignorance, but because of wider knowledge!

The former class believe that the child should not be allowed to become acquainted with the instruments sometimes used for wrong doing; the latter contend that a mere instrument, being an insensate thing, can safely be used to while away a moment's leisure, however dark and dreadful may be the purpose it may be put to by others.

Some time, when mankind has attained to heights of greater wisdom, the sincere workers for the better ment of the world will be drawn together by the bond of common interest, separated no longer by the difference of method.

"Judge Not"

Under the above caption, one of the leading papers of Los Angeles published last Sunday an editorial defense of John D. Rockefeller in his connection with Standard Oil.

It is a most specious plea; indeed, it is more, it is almost suspicious. We are not among those who believe in the cheap denunciation of the great founder of the "system," the man who has in a general way conferred a great benefit upon humanity and added to the general wealth, but who has at the same time built up an immense fortune by indirectly robbing another, perhaps smaller proportion, of his fellows.

Both of these things we believe to be true. He has benefited the world at large by adding to its wealth, and consequently, from our twentieth century standpoint, to the comfort and happiness of the people. He has robbed a portion of his fellows by indirect methods of opportunities which naturally were theirs as well as his, and in one direction has limited the commerce which he has greatly expanded in another.

Personally he is doubtless a pretty good sort of a man, but we imagine that his limitations are disclosed when it falls in his way to play the part of the unselfish patriot. We can imagine a very fair defense of John D. Rockefeller is possible, but the one alluded to above is as we have already termed it, specious, fair in appearance, but false in logic.

The first plea of the defense is, that at the time the unjust alliance between the railroads and the oil people began for the purpose of forcing smaller dealers out of business, there was no law against it! Here is morality with a vengeance! It suggests the morally uneducated citizen of primitive times saying to his hopeful offspring about bedtime of a dark night: "Hurry up and get through your prayers, son; we've got to rob Smith tonight, for the legislature meets tomorrow and then there will be a law against it."

And the second plea of the defense is like unto it: "Was there a man in this list of ruined efforts who would not have crushed the Standard had he been able?" The same old threadbare excuse for wrong-doing that has been practiced since the world was young. "I may as well rob my neighbor, for he would rob me if he could."

John D. Rockefeller is as much entitled to that flimsy excuse as is any other human being, and we hear it made daily as an excuse for all sorts of crookedness. The men who use such an excuse for their actions are the kind that will bear watching. They are of the kind who feel themselves justified in robbing their neighbor when by any possible twist of circumstances they can accuse some one else of robbing them.

When we find a real good defense of John D. we shall be glad to publish it, but the kind that we have referred to here, leaves him just as deep in the mire as he was in the beginning.

A SERMON TO OUR YOUNG MEN.

The text may be found on the midnight car from Los Angeles, commonly called the "jag car;" in some badly illumined corner at midnight, where the highly elevating game of "craps," furnishes you the recreation which your tired brain demands, and within other classic portals where for paltry coin you pore over the lineaments of ancient royalty and familiarize yourselves with the features of King, Queen, Jack and Joker, and erstwhile peer through sundry glasses to note the curious phases of a brain befuddled!

Herein are the texts, my dearly beloved. Are you proud of the part you take in their making? Is the record such as you will be proud of in the days to come? Oh, yes, I know that "a fellow must have some pastime," that life is a hundrum, tiresome thing and a fellow must get rid of it somehow. You didn't say that? Ah, I am glad to know it; but really I inferred it logically enough. If it isn't all this, why should you be in such a desperate hurry to shuffle it off! Do you know what it is to "kill time" by desperate and unworthy methods? It is suicide! No human law yet discovered is effective against it; you can do it if you want to. Is time your enemy? How many years of it are there at your disposal. You have possibly three score years to your credit, at the Bank of Time, and you have already drawn, say twenty of them. When you have drawn twice as much more the account will be exhausted and then? Oh, you don't like to be preached to. All right, run along, my boy. What's that? We old fellows "think we know it all?"

Wait a minute. Have you any expectation of adding to the knowledge you think you possess? You have! Well, then if your brain is of average receptive capacity, will you not know more as you increase in age and experience? Ah, you grant that, do you? Well, why should you not in fairness admit the possibility that, at your age, we old chaps were just about as wise as you are now, and having had the additional years of experience which you admit will add to your store of wisdom, why should we not know some things which have not yet been revealed to you? But, hold on, don't go out yet. You are earning money; probably good wages; you have been doing so for a good while. Where has it gone? What have you to show for it? "The world owes you a living." Indeed, it does not. You are indebted to the world and always will be. What have you done to pay that debt? Are you sponging off the parents who for so many years toiled for you and protected you in your years of helplessness?

Out of the ample wages that you are receiving, do you give them a portion on account of your debt, or does it go to the place at the end of the "jag car" route, to the successful worker at craps or to the coffers of that other concern that pretends to take such an interest in your welfare at so much per?

Young man, you are doing badly. It is time you called a halt. If your unbiased opinion justifies you, we will only say: Would you have us believe that in that little six by four skull of yours, you have more wisdom than has been garnered by the experience of man through all the ages? Nay, verily my son; nay, go to.

Mr. R. D. Lamson and family left for their new home at Corona, Tuesday last. They will be missed by the large circle of friends that they have made during their comparatively brief residence among us.

OUR STREETS.

Any one who was ever disposed to oppose the incorporation of Glendale as a city, must by this time be convinced that no mistake was made when we became a city of the sixth class. The work done on our streets clearly gives sufficient evidence of the good results of home rule. Fourth street from the boulevard to Glendale avenue, and the latter thoroughfare from First to Sixth street are object lessons of great value. We believe that the improvement of Fourth street alone is full compensation for the loss of the dinky car line. The changed appearance of these streets within the last year, marks the difference between progress and stagnation, and the good work has just begun. Second street and C street have also been improved with equally good results. Work has just been begun on B street between Fourth and Third streets. In a short time work will begin on Fourth street between Glendale avenue and A street, on Lomita avenue from the boulevard to Glendale avenue, and on Fifth street from the boulevard to Glendale avenue. Some of this work is to be done under the ten years bond act, which distributes the burden of expense over a term of years and will result, we think, in a very general improvement throughout the city limits.

In the meantime we hope that every encouragement will be given to the opening up of new streets, as this is a thing that can be done much easier now than at any time in the future. Pasadena is an object lesson as to how not to do it. In that city the opening up of streets in the first years of the city's history was to some extent neglected. Buildings were erected where streets should have been and the property became too valuable from a narrow point of view to dedicate to street purposes. The result is apparent in the unusually long blocks from street to street, which results in the necessity of making long detours and the consumption of valuable time in passing from one part of the city to the other. This is one idea which our citizens should constantly bear in mind, that we are building for the future as well as living in the present, and no narrow views of economy should prevent us from doing well and doing much.

Luther Burbank

The News has received a circular from Santa Rosa, signed by "Friends and Relatives of Luther Burbank," giving "General Information for the Public."

The circular is an answer to innumerable inquiries received by Mr. Burbank and is an attempt to defend the scientist from the importunities of visitors to his home and upon the part of the public generally.

The public is informed that Mr. Burbank has nothing to sell; that no dealer has all of his productions for sale, but that large dealers at various places in this country and Europe are supplied with some of them. The only Los Angeles concern mentioned in the list is the California Rose Company, altho the list does not pretend to be complete.

Over 6000 visitors were received on his grounds in 1904, since which time it has been necessary to refuse admission to the generel public in order to protect Mr. Burbank and his property.

Mr. C. F. Danford, who has been visiting his brother, Mr. Danford of the Verdugo Store for the past few weeks, returned last Saturday to his home in Quincy, Ill.

Local Happenings

Miss Aimee Barager is visiting Santa Ana for a few days.

Mrs. G. H. Innes went to Venice on Monday for a week's visit.

Mr. L. C. Brand who has been traveling around for recreation for the past month, has returned home.

Dr. D. W. Hunt, Mrs. Hunt and their daughter Dorothy made a trip to Fullerton and return by automobile last Sunday.

Mrs. Harn, who has been a great sufferer with rheumatism for the past three weeks, is not able to walk very much yet.

Mr. J. L. Whitaker and family of Ninth street have gone to Santa Monica for a month to try the bracing effects of sea air.

Rev. W. F. Stone, has returned from his vacation and will resume his duties at the Baptist church. Services Sunday morning and evening as usual.

Mrs. Phil Hunt and children are spending several weeks at Santa Monica. Mrs. E. H. Learned and daughter and Miss Fleming will join them this week.

Miss Helen Best entertained at a matinee party at the Belasco theater Thursday last, her niece, Miss Marguerite McLane. A dainty supper followed the performance.

Mr. J. L. Whitaker and family attended the reception given to Rev. Dr. A. G. L. Trew at Highland Park last Saturday, in honor of the fortieth anniversary of his entrance to the ministry.

Miss Lucile Schultz, one of the teachers in our Glendale schools for the coming year, is so pleased with this section that she expects to induce her father, Dr. Schultz, a well known Los Angeles physician, to build on a lot which he owns here.

Mr. T. R. Puckett and family who have occupied Mrs. Chase's house on Fourth street for the past half year or so, return Monday next to Shelbina, Missouri. Mr. Puckett, after the loss of a leg by an accident on Glendale Avenue last spring and a painful hospital experience in consequence, has so far recovered as to be able to travel it is hoped, without much discomfort. Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Jones accompany Mr. Puckett and family on a two months' visit to their old home in Missouri.

Mr. J. M. Benedict who has just returned from a business trip through Northern California, reports everything looking well outside of San Francisco. The wonderful resources of the state are developed, but in the metropolis on the bay, affairs are in a very unsatisfactory condition. The street car strike still exerts its baleful influence over everything in the way of business and several of the trades are tied up with labor troubles. Building operations seem to be carried on in a half-hearted way with small forces of men who make slow progress in the great work of rebuilding the city.

Mr. and Mrs. James Farrell, of B street, have returned from a two days' visit to Orange, where they were the guests of Mrs. Orman Oak, well known in Glendale social circles. The home of Mr. and Mrs. Oak is in the midst of a two acre park of pepper trees just outside of Orange. They have a fine orchard of orange and lemon trees, have five acres in melons and have just planted five acres in winter peas. In addition to this they have a hennery stocked with 500 chickens. While in Orange, Mr. and Mrs. Farrell also called upon a brother of Mr. Lucian Small, who lives on a near-by ranch.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar W. Pack who returned from Northern California a week ago, are both feeling very much benefited by the temporary change of scene. At Shasta Springs, on the banks of the Sacramento, they breathed in the elixir of ozone from the peaks of Shasta and revelled in the varied charms of that delightful retreat. They report the popular resort filled to overflowing and the proprietors have plans for a great increase in their hotel accommadations which if carried out will render it one of the great resorts of the state. Mr. Pack was pleased to find business in Glendale in so satisfactory a condition upon his return.

M. E. CHURCH NOTES.

On Sabbath morning the pastor will preach the seventh sermon on the Lord's prayer, subject, "Temptation." The sacrament of the Lord's supper will be observed. It is greatly desired that all our people shall be present.

Bro. Blackburn preached a very helpful sermon last Sabbath evening. There was a good attendance. The music was splendid.

There was quite a full attendance at the meeting of the Brotherhood of St. Paul on Monday evening. This organization has a fine start and much good will surely result from it. There will be a regular session of the Brotherhood next Monday evening. Young men are especially invited. Meeting opens at 7:30.

The cottage prayer meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Musser, on Sixth street, Tuesday evening, was not largely attended, but good interest.

The League Social, on Tuesday evening, was a very decided success. From start to finish it was well arranged and greatly enjoyed by all the forty persons who attended.

The league service will be held on Sabbath evening at 6:30. This is a special service. "Rally Day," special songs, readings and addresses. Be sure not to miss this very important service.

The pastor will preach at 7:30.

The home folks at the parsonage enjoyed a visit on Thursday evening from Dr. Thomson, wife and daughter. Bro. Thomson held the Fourth Quarterly conference.

The Scenic Route by Hay Wagon

The Epworth League had an outing this week which was marked by originality and a large number of thrills.

They sailed from the Methodist church in a hay wagon in quest of adventure by the "Scenic Route."

Their first stopping place, "Eastlake Park," was found at Mr. Remsburgh's on B street, where in the dining room a large and commodious lake was found rigged up for the occasion. The next stopping place was "Catalina Island," which was discovered after a perilous voyage in Mrs. Burket's back yard or thereabouts. After indulging in a fish supper the venturesome voyagers set sail for "Santa Barbara," located for convenience at Mr. Grant's residence on Sixth street near Verdugo Road, and here they were shipwrecked. Fortunately, however, they found a lot of watermelons washed up on the beach and starvation was warded off for the time being. Lively games were indulged in so successfully that not one of the party knew that the other was seasick.

Auto Blows Up

While Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Guenthart with Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Pack were in attendance at a performance at the Burbank theater last Tuesday evening, the fine new Pope-Toledo automobile of Mr. Guenthart, which was in charge of Chauffeur Beebee in front of the theater, blew up. The chauffeur was very seriously injured and is at the hospital in a precarious condition. The explosion caused a sensation in the street, as the flames shot high in the air. The accident was caused either by the flame from the lamp igniting the gas in some manner or by the chauffeur's lighted cigar. The theater party did not know of the accident until the performance was over.

REAL ESTATE AND BUILDING.

The lumber yards report business good for this time of the year; a number of buildings now in course of construction and others being figured on.

On Ninth street, near Brand boulevard, Mr. A. W. Tower is building a six-room cottage on the Randolph subdivision. The cost of this will probably reach $2000 or $2500. Mr. Tower has been a teacher in our High School for the past two years and has selected Glendale for his home, although for the coming year he will be employed as teacher in the Los Angeles Polytechnic school.

Mr. E. S. Comstock has traded his lots in the McIntyre-Miner tract, to Mr. L. A. Teschan, who now occupies the same. The old C. O. Rich place, on K street near Fifth, recently purchased by Mr. M. P. Harrison, has been sold to R. M. Neal, of Downey, who will move in soon with his family.

Mr. Fred W. Carter has traded with L. A. Jones for a Covina orange orchard, his house and lot on Fifth street.

On Orange street, between Third and Fourth, Mr. J. T. Rawlins is building himself a handsome story and a half cottage, with ground space 28x32. The foundation is of cement, rising two feet above the ground; there will be four large rooms, closets, bath room, etc., on the first floor and two bedrooms and a sewing room on the second. The cost will probably be about $2000. This leaves but one lot in this block, on the west side of the street, that has not a house on it.

On Third street, west of Central avenue, Mr. M. P. Harrison's new six-room house is well under way. This will be a story and a half cottage, to cost about $1500. Next to this on the west, the Rev. M. D. Davenport is building a similar cottage, which will have seven rooms. Mr. Witham, on Seventh street, between Glendale avenue and A street, has purchased the house recently belonging to Mrs. Low, moved it on his own property and will make extensive additions and improvements to it.

Seeing San Diego

Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Williams had a unique experience in "Seeing San Diego" last week. They sailed for that place Saturday morning on the State of California, arriving at San Diego at 5 p.m. The report had gone ahead of them that there was a case of bubonic plague on board, and when the health officer came aboard he tied the vessel up in quarantine. Every person on board was examined by the physician and then the vessel was fumigated for the purpose of killing the rats, which perished in great numbers. Some of the humans came near perishing also, for the fumes were something fearful. At 9 p.m. the passengers were allowed to land, which gave them about three hours in which to see San Diego by night.

In a Hold-up

Glendale had a representative at the hold-up of the Redondo car between Redondo and Los Angeles last Tuesday evening, in the person of Mrs. F. L. Church, who was a passenger on the car that was successfully robbed by the lone highwayman. The robber thrust his revolver in front of Mrs. Church's face and demanded her coin. She produced all but a ten dollar gold piece and the robber was so exasperated at the smallness of her contribution that he threw it back to her.

Mrs. Church admits that the experience was a little trying on the nerves, but is otherwise none the worse for it.

GLENDALE DATES.

No, not the kind the calendar man uses, nor the ones you used to make with your best girl in that "sweet summer time, long ago," but the real, sure enough dates of commerce, that the street peddlers in Constantinople sell in the name of the prophet and which furnish one of the principal articles of food for thousands of people in the great desert countries of the Orient. Over twenty years ago, some date seeds, thrown carelessly down by some of the members of Mr. E. T. Byrem's family on Glendale avenue and Third street, sprung up and produced in time a flourishing tree, which is today bearing a very fine quality of seedless dates. The annual product is not very large, but it has been gradually increasing for the past three seasons. The fruit when thoroughly cured is very fine, but is inclined to be woody until properly ripened. It is smaller than the ordinary date of commerce, but whether due to the tree not having had proper care, is a question yet to be determined. During the ripening season the fruit has to be protected from the birds who can be trusted to know a good thing when they see it, in the way of fruit.

The New Railroad

The bonus required for the new railroad up Verdugo Road and over to B street has been secured. There yet remain some details to be worked out in regard to the right of way, but these will only tend to cause some delay and not seriously embarrass the enterprise.

CHOIR ENTERTAINED.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde R. Carmack most delightfully entertained the members of the choir of the First Methodist Episcopal church, of Tropico, at their pretty new villa on Central avenue, Tuesday evening. A musical program was rendered by the choir, after which an amusing contest, "Between you and I," was enjoyed. Dainty refreshments were served later.

Having never sufficiently rallied from the operation, Mr. Campbell was advised to bring Mrs. Campbell to California, and they arrived here about six weeks ago. Mrs. Campbell gained but slightly by the change.

The funeral services were held Thursday morning and interment occurred at Forest Lawn cemetery. Rev. John Pittenger read the burial services. Mrs. Joseph Marple and Miss Fannie Marple sang.

SCHOOL GROUNDS BEAUTIFIED.

The spacious grounds surrounding the handsome new seventeen thousand dollar school building are being most extensively improved and beautified under the direction of the trustees, W. A. Thompson, Charles Murray and A. W. Collins. The old fruit trees which once adorned the grounds are giving place to shade and ornamental tropical plants. Provision is being made for a tennis court and basket ball.

The gravel sidewalks are giving place to those of cement and the streets surrounding the school premises are being curbed and oiled. School commences Monday, September 16th, but the pupils are requested to assemble either Friday or Saturday preceding the opening of school and receive from the teachers the list of books for their respective grades.

This plan will eliminate all unnecessary delay upon the opening day.

OLD SETTLERS' PICNIC.

This picnic, last Saturday, was a most enjoyable affair. The attendance was not as large as it would have been had a longer notice been given, but about seventy-five people gathered at Ech Park about noon and a little while later sat down to a most bountiful repast, provided by the ladies of the party. There was a delightful informality about the affair which added greatly to its enjoyment. One of the oldest of the old settlers, Mr. J. W. Cook, attended in his wheel chair to which he is temporarily confined by reason of a leg that was broken about two months ago. Mr. and Mrs. Cook moved to their present home on San Fernando road, twenty-nine years ago. Mr. Cook's near neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. John Hodgson and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Devine, were also present as representatives of the makers of the first chapters of the modern history of this section. Although not one of the oldest in years, Mr. E. W. Richardson was present, antedating Mr. Cook in his acquaintance with our valley. Those present particularly regretted that the dean of old timers in regard to age, Mr. W. C. B. Richardson, was unable to be present. Mr. G. F. Dewing, of Verdugo road, three years past the four score mark, was there, however, with Mrs. Dewing, p[illegible]ng to attend similar gatherin[illegible]e future. Among the non-residents most cordially welcomed by the first settlers, were Mr. Geo. W. Woodward, Mrs. Woodward and daughter. Mr. and Mrs. Woodward were conspicuous in the good work of the pioneers of Glendale and Tropico, over twenty years ago. Mr. Woodward has been for eighteen years a member of the Los Angeles police force, where he has made an exceptionally fine record. He can sing a song and tell a story just as well as he could a score of years ago; in fact, Mr. Ed Ayers was kept busy looking after his laurels, for his stories seemed almost truthful in comparison with Woodward's. Mr. Elias Ayers and Mr. Samuel Ayers and wife were also present, as were Mr. and Mrs. Goode, Mr. and Mrs. Thorne, Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Patterson, Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Byram, Mr. and Mrs. Newcomb, Mrs. Hackman, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Bullis, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Bullis, Mrs. C. J. Newcomb, Mrs. John Hobbs, Mrs. J. A. Logan, Mrs. W. A. Thompson, Mrs. C. Moser and Messrs. Tilley, Griswold, Rice, Dutton, Light Davenport, Lindgren and Sherer. Before dispersing, the assembly was called to order and an organization formed for the purpose of having annual reunions and to keep the old settlers in touch with one another. An invitation is extended to all residents of this vicinity to join the organization, on the ground that the newcomer of today will be the old settler of tomorrow. Mr. J. C. Sherer was made chairman of the organization and an executive committee was appointed as follows: Mrs. Mary A. Ayers, Mrs. E. D. Goode, Mrs. S. A. Ayers, Mr. B. F. Patterson, Mr. Robt. Devine.

SUCCESSFUL MEETING

Held by Fourth District Library Association at San Diego.

From the moment that Mrs. Davison, librarian at San Diego, boarded the south bound train at Old Town, the old San Diego, and distributed street car tickets to some sixty library visitors, who were given free transportation by the San Diego Street Car company to all parts of the city, to the close of the fine band concert which closed the day's work and pleasure of the Fourth District Library association, on Friday, August 23rd, the carrying out of the well-formulated plans were a success. The meeting of the association was held in the artistic club house of the San Diego Woman's club. The building was chastely and effectively decorated with potted plants, by Miss Sessions, a local florist, and the choice cut flowers were furnished complimentary by the San Diego Floral association, which also presented each visitor a boutenniere of carnations, on which was tied a printed card bearing "Greetings From San Diego Floral association." They later furnished the beautiful table decorations of pink carnations and asparagus plumosus at Sargent's Grill, where the guests were tendered a complimentary banquet by friends of the library.

The library meeting opened with an address of cordial welcome by Mr. Sam Ferry Smith, president of the library board of San Diego, to which Mrs. Schwann, president of the District Library association, pleasantly responded.

Mr. T. S. Knoles, of the University of Southern California, gave the principal address upon "What Do We Mean by Culture." An interesting program of live subjects followed, interspersed with fine vocal solos rendered by Mrs. Rowan, a local musician, who was much enjoyed. Very handsome badges bearing the familiar quotation, "The Ever Welcome Company of Books," were given each delegate. The use of the club house for the occasion was given by the San Diego Club.

Much of the success of the meeting was, no doubt, due to Mrs. Davison, the gracious, tactful and executive librarian at San Diego, who acted as hostess of the day. The splendid sixty thousand dollar Carnegie library was much admired by all the delegates.

Miss Russ, librarian of Pasadena, extended an invitation to meet at that city for the next meeting, which was accepted.

GLENDALE DELEGATE.

W. C. T. U. Column

The meeting at the Baptist church on last Sunday evening was well attended and full of interest.

Mrs. Griffith gave a very interesting talk on the work in the different departments of the W. C. T. U. Singing by Mrs. Payne of Los Angeles, of music of her own composition, assisted by Mrs. Griffith and Mrs. Gaylord. Mr. Marple also sang a solo.

Several new names were added to our roll.

Our president Mrs. Gaylord, accompanied by Mrs. Brown and other ladies, made a visit to the Ransom home at Highland Park on Tuesday of this week, taking with them a donation of fruit and other things needed in the home.

Our next regular meeting will be on Friday afternoon, September 6th, at 2:30, at the M. E. church. A full attendance is desired.

Presbyterian Picnic

The Ladies' Aid Society and the Sunday school of the Presbyterian church combined last Wednesday to give a picnic at Eastlake Park. The day was a delightful one and was thoroughly enjoyed by those present, who numbered about eighty-five. The luncheon provided was most bountiful and was honored by appreciative appetites. Taken all in all, it was one of the most successful affairs of the picnic season.
